

Changes I made from low-fi sketching to hight-fi prototyping

- Add more information to the item being added to the shopping cart. In this way, the users will be able to make a better decision before checking out.
- Add delete and edit function. Although I didn't implement these two features in my hi-fi prototype, I plan to let the user see the delete and edit buttons when they hover over certain items.
- Add color to the checkout button to make it consistent with other action buttons on the other page. In this way, this website would look more consistent and neat.
